

STATEMENT

6 February 2017

It has come to our attention that the Australian Vaccination-sceptics Network contains a link to the CAA National website. We have requested that they remove this link to our website as a matter of urgency.

The Chiropractors' Association of Australia does not support the views promoted by the Australian Vaccination-sceptics Network. We have also informed them that the CAA has adopted the following policy on immunisation:

"The CAA supports the Australian government's view that immunisation is an important health care initiative. It is outside the scope of practice for chiropractors. When considering immunisation, patients should consult with either their GP or Maternal and Child Health Nurse for further information."

When providing chiropractic care to infants and young children, practitioners must have a good understanding of the principles of public health including disease prevention and health promotion.

For further information on the care of infants and children we encourage you read our Quality Care Statement which is available on our website at www.bit.ly/CAAQualityCare

- ENDS -

Media Contact: Bernard Rupasinghe | policy@caa.asn.au